Susan Gramling Moore's Paintings Capture Local Vistas in Bold Colors

The Waccamaw Library is delighted to announce that Susan Gramling Moore will serve as its Featured Artist for March-April 2020. Moore's art reflects the abundant beauty and visual grace of our area's surroundings, captured in vivid tones. Visit the Waccamaw Library at 41 St. Paul Place in Pawleys Island during normal operating hours to view Moore's paintings in person throughout March and April. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

Moore is a native of Orangeburg, South Carolina. She received a Bachelor of Arts in English from the University of South Carolina. She has always had a love for art, and enjoys experimenting with color and texture with both acrylic and oil paints. Her paintings come to life with shapes of color and unique contrasts of lights and darks. She is inspired by the beautiful colors in God's natural creations and loves to apply them to her work, sometimes coherently and sometimes not. She uses brush and palette knife to create vibrant landscapes, still lifes, and abstract paintings.

Susan, her husband Rion, and their three daughters live in Georgetown. When she isn't painting, Susan enjoys cooking, spending time with family, and taking long walks around Georgetown, where she often finds inspiration for her paintings. Susan's work was recently featured in a Peace Sotheby's art show, in the Pawleys Palette Collaborative Art Show, and as donations in many local charity events.
